

Adam Pressman

Global Director, Client Partnerships
Sirota

Joining Sirota in March 2012, Adam Pressman is working to help expand Sirota's business and global presence. He has over 15 years experience in business development and leadership and organizational effectiveness consulting. Most recently, he worked with Heidrick & Struggles to provide executive assessment, leadership succession, and coaching services to large, multi-national businesses. He is experienced across industries in areas such as individual assessment, management and high potential development programs, and leadership team effectiveness.

Prior to Heidrick & Struggles, Adam worked with The Gallup Organization where he helped create and build the firm’s employee engagement practice. At Gallup, he advised many large, multi-national organizations on issues related to improving employee and customer engagement, as well as talent selection and development, and led many firm-wide practice development and transformation efforts. For a 3 year period, Adam led Gallup’s Asia-Pacific P&L for all the firm's services while being based in Sydney, Australia.

Adam has an MBA, in Marketing and International Business from The Ohio State University and a BA in Marketing from The University of Washington, Michael G. Foster School of Business.