Rebecca Wang

Senior Manager, Corporate Affairs
Hewlett-Packard

Rebecca Wang is a member of the small but mighty Community Engagement & Global Giving Experiences team within HP's Corporate Affairs organization. She oversees the company's award-winning employee engagement strategy – which includes everything from hands-on/team-building activities to skills-based and pro bono volunteering -- for HP's 300,000 employees around the globe.

Rebecca has her professional roots in the nonprofit sector, spending ten years as a fundraiser and volunteer manager at a variety of organizations including the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and YMCA.

Her move to the corporate social responsibility field came about when she was hired on by Cisco, to scale the volunteer program globally and manage the Cisco Systems Foundation matching gift and disaster relief programs.

Prior to joining HP in 2010, Rebecca spent several years focused on raising her young children and donating her skills to her local community and the public schools where her sons attend.

Rebecca holds a Communications degree from UC Berkeley and a Master's degree in Kinesiology from the University of Michigan. For the past 18 years, Rebecca and family have called Menlo Park, CA home.
