Audrey McGuckin

Program Director, Chief Human Resources (CHRO) III Council
The Conference Board

Audrey McGuckin is the program director for the Chief Human Resources (CHRO) III Council.

A global HR executive who has lived and worked across the globe in dynamic markets including Singapore, China, Taiwan, Japan, Germany, France, Spain, and the US, McGuckin consults with CHROs and HR executives to solve their toughest and most complex business challenges through innovative talent solutions.

Before beginning her consulting career, McGuckin was chief talent officer with a leading global technology company where she delivered change management and organizational development solutions to her internal clients. McGuckin also served as the senior business partner for five years in a multibillion-dollar segment of the business, working closely with the CEO and centers of expertise to deliver HR services.

McGuckin works with a broad spectrum of HR executives ranging from start-ups to Fortune 50 organizations. She serves diverse industries including banking, financial services, healthcare, packaging, computing and storage, digital home, industrial and energy, networking and telecommunications, and automotive.

Her unique background enables her to help clients realize their strategic human capital ambitions in a practical, “no-nonsense” way. She has an uncanny ability to interpret business strategies and unbundle these into actionable HR and talent plans that deliver tangible results for her clients.
